Energy & Water

Energy Saving Production Process

Energy Saving Production Process

Fortunately, the manufacturing of personal care products does not entail high energy and material inputs. We use advanced facilities and unique techniques that conserve both energy and emissions simultaneously.

Cold Process

For manufacturing of lotions and other surfactant products, we employ a unique technique of "Cold-Process" that consumes 50% less energy as compared to the traditional processes.

Water Conservation

We minimize the consumption of water in our manufacturing processes. Although most of surfactant-containing body care products do end up in waste water, they are 95% biodegradable and thus cause no threat to our ground water resources.
